Bandai Namco – Who We Are?

Bandai Namco is a leading global entertainment company, formed in 2005 through the merger of two industry powerhouses: NAMCO and BANDAI.

NAMCO traces its roots back to 1955, founded by Masaya Nakamura, who started by creating coin-operated amusement rides on the rooftop of a department store in Yokohama, Japan. From these humble beginnings, NAMCO evolved into one of the world's largest software companies, launching iconic brands, including PAC-MAN, one of the most recognisable video game characters of all time.

BANDAI, established even earlier in 1950, began as a producer of games and toys. It quickly grew to become one of the largest toy companies globally by the 1980s, creating its own popular ranges and holding licenses for many beloved characters. Together, these two companies have shaped the landscape of entertainment, offering a diverse array of products and experiences enjoyed by fans around the world.

Looney Tunes -Red Zone Rush

Red Zone Rush is a 4-player game featuring dozens of mini–American Football labelled Looney Tunes, with different letters and ticket values on a rotating playfield. In the middle of the playfield is an Looney Toones licensed football player that is operated by the player ready to help RUSH the footballs into the endzone platform.

Combine the letters on the football to spell “TOUCHDOWN”; if the player skilfully gets all of these letters they will receive a super ticket bonus. Several footballs are labelled “CARD” which allow for the players to win collectable game-pieces which through different combinations can win them additional bonuses.

Angry Birds Boom

The Angry Birds franchise is soaring into arcades with Angry Birds Boom! — a new video redemption game from Raw Thrills, Play Mechanix, and Rovio Entertainment. In this game, up to two players launch Red and Chuck into destructible, physics-based worlds filled with structures, Bad Piggies, and their leaders, King Pig and Foreman Pig.

Players earn points by causing as much destruction as possible and discovering hidden treasures before time runs out. The player with the highest score wins the most tickets.

The Angry Birds Boom! cabinet includes force-feedback controllers themed after Red and Chuck, a 65-inch display with RGB LED lighting, and artwork of popular Angry Birds characters.
